MEN OF 25TH HONOR MEMORY OF GREAT SAGE OF TUSKEGEE

Special Memorial Services Are Held By Soldiers in Honor of Booker T. Washington

One of the most solemn and at the same time the most impressive services ever held at Schofield Barracks was that which took place at the 25th Infantry amusement hall last Sunday evening as a memorial to the late Dr. Booker T. Washington. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Scott literary society and the various fraternal organizations of the 25th Infantry, the special music for the occasion being furnished by the 25th Infantry band, conducted by Chief Musician Leslie King, and the Scott glee club, conducted by Private Highbaugh, Quartermaster Corps.

The meeting began promptly at 6 o'clock. The Masons, the Odd Fellows and the United Spanish War Veterans marched from the Veterans' hall to the place of meeting in a body, being dressed in full regalia with their banners and insignia. All of the numbers on the program were well rendered and evinced careful preparation. The sacred music rendered by the 25th Infantry band under the leadership of Chief Musician King and especially the violin solo by Pvt. Leon H. Herfford of the band, and the songs rendered by the glee club, are deserving of special mention. Private Highbaugh of the glee club led in the singing of "Swing Low Sweet Chariot." Mr. Washington's favorite jubilee song, which was, perhaps, the most stirring and impressive number on the program.

Mr. Hilson's eulogy, Private Rickman's essay and Private Moses' Reminiscences of his school days at Tuskegee, held the large audience, which almost filled the hall to its capacity.

Scott Chief Speaker.
Chaplain Oscar J. W. Scott, by special request of the literary club, delivered the address of the evening, taking as his subject, "Booker T. Washington As I Knew Him." Chaplain Scott was a personal friend of Dr. Washington, and for that reason was able to tell of many of the intimate facts of the great leader's life and character; he knew of many of the struggles and of the triumphs of Dr. Washington. He spoke of the great stress which Dr. Washington laid upon thrift and industry, of his thoroughness and of his courage in the face of difficulties. He impressed the audience by relating incidents showing Dr. Washington's faithfulness even in little things, and told of his great faith and pride in his race. Dr. Washington was a famous story teller, which helped to make him popular as a platform speaker. The chaplain related some of Dr. Washington's most renowned stories and showed how every one of them had a special point and always struck home. He said in conclusion that he believed Dr. Washington's great faith in his race would be fully justified.

FERN GETS BUSY WITH XMAS PLAN FOR PRISONERS

Jailer Joseph J. Fern, with the assistance of Sheriff Charles H. Rose, is preparing to allow the holiday spirit to enter the walled enclosure of the jail and cheer the men who are doing time for long or short periods and for big and little offenses. As far as it can be done, Christmas will be made merry in the stockade just as it is outside.

Dinner Saturday, Christmas Day, is of course the feature. No viands which are appropriate to the occasion will be lacking, from roast pig to mince pie, and there will be plenty for all. Another special dinner will be served Sunday, and still another New Year's Day. Tables for the dinners are being built in the jail yard.

The program to amuse the men will be informal, and will be mainly made up by those in jail. Among these are a number of musicians, and Saturday afternoon the men will be allowed music and games. Saturday night there will also be a concert.

Arrangements have not yet been made, but it is probable there will be religious services Christmas Day and Sunday.

YOUTHS TRAINED IN SOLDIERING MAKE FOR PEACE

"I am just as big a believer in peace as I am of having every boy of the proper age know something about military tactics," said Fred L. Waldron, president of the Chamber of Commerce, today in commenting upon the letter received yesterday by him, as president of the chamber, from former President William Howard Taft, president of the American branch of the League to Enforce Peace.

"We should teach military training in our schools. It has been done for a number of years at the University of California, and I believe the public schools, particularly the high schools, should give military instruction."

"Then, if something does happen, the discipline which has been taught the boys and young men will be of inestimable value in making an army out of what would be otherwise a disorganized mob of patriots."

Mr. Waldron's two sons are students at the Hitchcock Military Academy, San Rafael, a suburb of San Francisco.

The letter from former President Taft was addressed to Mr. Waldron, as a charter member of the League to Enforce Peace, asking him to use his influence in the inception in Hawaii of the plan of organization adopted by the league's executive committee. A local committee is expected to be formed in a short time.

WIFE, FRIGHTENED, TELLS

OF HUSBAND'S STILL

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Wassili Bendenski, who came from Austria several years ago, decided there was money in making and selling whiskey. So about a year ago, according to United States revenue officers, he set up a still in his home, 918 North Orlanna street, and started to make liquor out of banana, orange, potato, apple, pear and other stuff. Bendenski worked on the theory that what Uncle Sam didn't know would not hurt him.

and he never gave the revenue men a thought.

Everything went well until Bendenski quarreled with his wife. Planning vengeance, she went to the postoffice and "tipped" the revenue agents to Bendenski's business. She explained that she was becoming afraid of her husband, and asked the government agents to protect her.

Britain has grown abroad to 78 times her area at home.
